

I've had CFS for over 2 decades and have not been able to work or follow any self sustainable career path as a result during this time. The quality of life has been honestly brutal despite consistently being hopeful and optimistic over the years that things will turn around.

Many are in the same boat and treatments offered to date by our doctors are inadequate at best to completely failed for treatment of our worst symptoms. Better and more robust scientific research is appropriate.

Please make progressive and well funded CDC leadership and research for CFS an absolute priority.

Thank You,

David Hall
